Launch of Multidimensional Poverty Peer Network

June 6th-7th 2013
Oxford University

Ministers and distinguished high-level representatives from over 20 countries will formally launch a new Multidimensional Poverty Peer Network in Oxford on 6 June. Hosted by OPHI, the day's activities will culminate with a lecture by Professor Amartya Sen, chaired by the Chancellor of the University, the Rt Hon Lord Patten of Barnes. On 7 June, there will be three roundtables on Multidimensional Poverty: National and Subnational Applications.

The multidimensional poverty network is an international peer network for policy makers engaged in implementing multidimensional poverty measures. The network will provide peer-to-peer technical and policy support as well as mutual input into the design and institutional arrangements for successful implementation of programmes to eradicate multidimensional poverty.

Poverty is often defined by one-dimensional measures, such as income. But no one indicator alone can capture the multiple aspects that constitute poverty. A rapidly increasing number of policymakers around the world are working to establish multidimensional poverty measures, using the Alkire Foster (AF) methodology and the related set of empirical techniques developed by OPHI.

The new multidimensional poverty peer network enables leaders in multidimensional poverty measures to share their experiences with policymakers in countries that are exploring the possibility, or which are in the process of implementing the measures. It also provides access to resources, including technical support, executive training courses and an online store of knowledge and lessons learned.

Please see attached the agenda for the day of the launch and the list of participants.

OPHI acknowledges the financial support of BMZ, Germany's Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development.

OPHI is a research centre in the Oxford Department of International Development (ODID) at Queen Elizabeth House (QEH) in the University of Oxford.
